Arrival of the Denmark's Ship-wrecked Passengers.

ENTHUSIASTIC WELCOME.

Hundreds of People Gather on the Dock at Philadelphia to Receive the Emigrants That Came So Nearely Going Down With the Unfortunate Vessel.

PHILADELPHIA, April 23.—Hundreds of voices blended in a great shout and cheer after cheered the air as the steamer Missouri, with her precious cargo, which had so gallantly rescued from the ill-fated Denmark, arrived safely at her dock at Washington street wharf at half past 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The passengers on board the Missouri returned the greeting with no less enthusiasm. Handkerchiefs flattered in the stuff boxes, happy smiles lit up the faces of the more than 300 emigrants who had been so providentially rescued from a watery grave, and in every way the scene was one that indelibly fixed itself upon the minds of those who witnessed it.

On the wharf were not a few men and women who were there to meet relatives and friends after having resigned all hope several days ago of ever seeing them again. Fathers had there to meet mothers, children had travelled hundreds of miles to greet their parents, and friends stood on the wharf and gazed with glistening eyes toward the long line of men, women and children, who stood along the line of the big vessel as she steamed slowly up to the end of the wharf. Ferryboats and tugs which were passing added to the enthusiasm with their salutes. Cheers and cries of joy continued without much interruption until the Missouri had been swung around and made her mooring at the wharf.

Then a ladder was thrown off and the custom house officials followed closely by the press representatives, made their way up the side of the vessel and landed on her decks. Brave Capt. Murrell, who stood on the bridge of the steamer, surrounded by C. W. Davis, and other representatives of Peter Wright & Sons, was the cynosure of all eyes.

He was at once surrounded by the reporters and his many friends, all bent in paying a tribute to his gallant service in saving so many lives. Among the first to board the vessel was Rev. J. W. Hall, of the Swedish society, who busied himself with giving hearty welcome to the hundreds of Scandinavian emigrants, the great majority of whom were unacquainted with a single word in the language of the country, which will henceforth be their home.

The passengers unite in praising the noble work of Capt. Murrell and his brave crew. Dr. Jesperson, one of the passengers taken from the Denmark, who was on his way to New York, spoke in the highest praise of Capt. Murrell's action in behalf of himself and his fellow passengers. In relating his experience to a reporter of the United Press, Dr. Jesperson stated that he never had seen before such clear-headed work under the trying circumstances. "If Capt. Murrell's perfect self-control," said the doctor, "to which we are in a great measure indebted for our lives at the present time. But our experience for a time was certainly a most thrilling one, which I hope never to have to pass through again. Up to the 4th instant, our trip on the Denmark had been a pleasant one. On the latter date, however, we encountered a severe storm. We would have weathered it all right, I suppose had our engines held out, but the shaft broke near the joint of a section."

"As a result a hole was cut through the bottom of the vessel. It appears that simultaneously with the breaking of the shaft an engine pipe broke, and Engineer Koss was instantly killed. Another leak was caused by the bursting of the pipe in the side of the vessel. This makes now very serious, and our vessel was at the mercy of the waves. Capt. Knudsen endeavored to keep her the path of the ocean storms. We sought vainly that day for the sight of a sail, but night fell and we still remained in our perilous position. The drawing of the following day, the fifth, however, was designed to bring us relief. A sail was sighted by the lookouts, and we at once put up signals of distress. The sails proved to be those of the Missouri."

"When in speaking distance Capt. Knudsen asked if the Missouri could take our passengers on board. The commander of the latter steamer said that that would be impossible, as he had nowhere to put them. He promptly agreed to take us in tow. We got along well enough for a few hours, when it was discovered that the water was fast pouring into the steamer through the big hole in her stem. The pumps were kept going without intermission, but they proved almost useless as saving the vessel was concerned. We kept at it, however, until the 6th, and then it was seen that we could no longer hope to save our ship. As soon as approached, the danger grew more imminent. Capt. Knudsen boarded the Missouri and asked that his passengers be received on her decks.

"At 2 o'clock the work of transferring the hundred of souls from the Denmark to the Missouri began. First the women and children were taken aboard the latter, then the men, and lastly Capt. Knudsen and his crew. You may imagine that during this time the excitement was intense, but any instance of a panic was averted by the coolness of both Capt. Murrell and Knudsen, and the prompt manner in which the crew obeyed their every order. After six hours' work at 8 o'clock on the part of the 6th, all the passengers of the Denmark were safely landed in the Missouri. Of course, a large part of the latter steamer's cargo had to be jettisoned before accommodations could be had for the 721 souls. Many of these had to abandon their valuable effects as the amount of goods which each passenger was allowed to retain was necessarily limited to what was absolutely indispensable.

"The Missouri was then held for the nearest land, where we arrived without any further incident on the 10th. There all the young unmarried men, to the number of 350, and including Capt. Knudsen, and the largest part of his crew, were landed. On the 11th we again set sail, after having laid in a stock of provisions, which added to those we took from the Denmark, before desiring her, proved amply sufficient.

"Capt. Murrell deserves the highest praise for the manner in which he has treated us during the entire passage. He gave us all the best accommodations possible, and did all that lay in his power to make the trip a pleasant one, and so it has been after our previous experience and fortunate escape."

A few others on the steamer could speak English, among whom was Jens Nelson, who has lived in Austin, Minn., for some months past. He was returning from a visit to his parents. He corroborated all Dr. Jesperson had said about their experience, and the exceeding kindness of Capt. Murrell and his crew in rescuing them and providing for them on his own vessel, at the sacrifice of a large part of his cargo.

Agent Johnson, of the Thingvalla line, in speaking of the accident said it was undoubtedly one which could not be foreseen, and for which no one was responsible. He related that the Aurora suffered a similar disaster about two years ago. The shaft broke and the engineer, at the risk of his own life, crawled in the tunnel and shut off the steam, thus preventing the broken edge from breaking a hole through the side of the vessel. "It is very strange, however," concluded the speaker, "that one of the pugilists should burst at the same time."

Shortly after the vessel had made fast to the wharf, a beautiful floral design representing a steamer at sea, was carried up the gangway and handed over to Capt. Murrell, with a few appropriate remarks. The captain was taken completely by surprise, but in a clear distinct voice made a few fitting remarks in accepting the tribute to his bravery. "I thank you," he said, "for the officers and crew of my vessel for this gift, since I know it is not intended alone for me. It has been said there are no more British sailors, but since this latest experience, I am convinced he still lives. I am very glad that I was able to do even this much for these poor people; anyone would have done the same thing. All that I can say is that I would do it again, should it become necessary."

Loud cheers greeted the captain's speech, and as he concluded, he made his way through the admiring throng and carried the floral ship to his private cabin. This beautiful tribute was presented to the captain by several people prominent in shipping circles.

Rev. Mr. Holm then brought to the hungry passengers the welcome news that a lunch, consisting of bread, butter, meats, salads and coffee, had been prepared for them on the wharf. The 350 emigrants were not long in accepting this invitation, and soon they forgot for the moment, their recent ordeal, while they satisfied the cravings of their appetites.

Gathered about the table, some 200 feet in length, was the second steward of the Denmark, William Schanderling, and the ill-fated steamer's purser, Hans Hemphill. The lunch was prepared by the Thingvalla line, through its representative, John Roth. Mr. Roth made arrangements for the transportation of the emigrants, who were going west, and they all left on a special train over the Pennsylvania railroad at midnight. Many of them expect to locate in every state, while others will go but a few hundred miles.

There were two passengers destined for New York. Among them were the twenty-eight cabin passengers of the Denmark. They also left the city before midnight. The emigrants who will locate in the west will be carefully provided for until they reach their destination.

Capt. Murrell left his ship early in the evening, and accompanied his friend, Mr. C. W. Davis, to the latter's home at Riverport, N. J. The captain is a good natured man, but extremely modest. He insists that he is not only to think but to know that throughout the wide confines of the race to which we all belong there is an overwhelming preponderance of sentiment in favor of that acknowledgment. At home this judgement has been constitutionally recorded by Ireland herself, by Scotland and Wales, the representatives of all the three being in favor of Home Rule by a majority of three or four to one.

And, founding ourselves on the evidence of the elections in England which have taken place since the general election of 1886, we firmly believe that England herself will be the opportunity now offered her by a dissolution, record a verdict decisively in accord with those of the other portions of the United Kingdom and of the Anglo-Saxon race at large. Encouraged by these indications at home and abroad, and by the wise advice of their representatives in parliament, the Irish people show an indisposition to crime and outrage not less remarkable than their determination to carry forward their cause to its successful consummation now retarded by the votes of men who do not represent the real sentiment of the country.

"It is a further satisfaction to us to indicate in this acknowledgement local, but authoritative, manifestations from America, only less remarkable than what has been recorded from the centers and has had the illustrious sanction of the president himself. This very day I have received a communication from the returning of empty tank cars free of charge and also of the paying a mileage rate on such empty tank cars.

Third—The question of what railroad companies are not obliged to furnish tank cars as well as cars of other descriptions for oil transportation.

Children in the White House Yard.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Washington turned out in full force yesterday and participated in the annual Easter egg rolling festivities in the White House grounds. It is estimated that 10,000 persons, fully three-fourths of whom were children, were on the grounds during the day. The day was balmy and springlike, and light dresses predominated. At 1 o'clock the president came down into the east room and shook hands with several hundred grown people and children. After lunch he came out on the rear porch of the mansion with Benny McKee in his arms, accompanied by Mrs. Harrison, Russell Harrison, Mrs. McKee, Miss Murphy, Dr. Scott and a few others. Dr. Scott held "Baby" McKee, who aided his brother in enthusiasm the crowd by waving a handkerchief. The president remained on the porch for half an hour watching the little folks enjoy themselves on the green yard.

It is a real and a grateful participation for the statesmen of the American revolution to have taken their place one for all among the greatest political instructors of the world. George Washington was their acknowledged and illustrious head, and to him and them I have long felt that I owned no trivial part of my own public education. Long, without limit of length, may that Union flourish under the blessing and favor of God, with the foundation of which their names are inseparably associated. I have a great number scattered towards claims, but the majority moved rapidly towards the lands. The high water on the Chumron has subsided, and no further trouble is anticipated.

No More Soldiers Needed.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Acting Adj't. Maj. Gen. Crook has received the following dispatch bearing on the situation in Oklahoma from Maj. Gen. Crook, dated Chicago, April 22:

"Assistant adj't, department Missouri.—New York, April 23.—A dispatch to the Maritime exchange from Norfolk, Va., states that the schooner wrecked off Hatteras on the morning of the 17th proves to be the John Shay, of New York. A portion of the stern of the vessel was washed ashore at Norfolk yesterday but nothing has yet been heard of her cargo and crew, six of whom were seen in the schooner's rigging when she struck.

Shop Men Laid Off.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., April 23.—One hundred and two men were laid off Saturday at the Chicago and Alton railroad shops in this city. For some time past the shops have been working eight hours a day, except in the foundry, and thereon. Business on the road is reported as more quiet than ever known before, and the depression is felt by the employees generally.

Every Farm in the Territory Already in Possession of One or More Claimants, While Thousands are Vainly Searching for Land—The Rush at the Land Office.

GUTHRIE, I. T., April 23.—The gates of Oklahoma were swing open at noon yesterday, and restless torrents of humanity began to pour over its soil. From the Cherokee strip came the great fleet of prairie schooners across the Canadian; from the Chickasaw nation came troop after troop of sturdy ponies, each one carrying a boomer; the steam, thus preventing the broken edge from breaking a hole through the side of the vessel. "It is very strange, however," concluded the speaker, "that one of the pugilists should burst at the same time."

The greatest surprise occurred in the city of Quincy, where the vote was, yes 1,000; no 491, the city having voted "no license" last November by 930 plurality. Somerville was the only city in the state in which a majority was cast for the amendment, the vote being 1,812 to 1,546. In Finchburg the majority against the amendment, with three small towns to bear from, 49,682.

The business portion of the village of Harrisburg, O., was destroyed by fire yesterday. A girl named Holmes was fatally injured by an explosion of gunpowder at Billings, Montana.

Miss Emma Glover, who lives in Marion county, W. Va., is charged with child murder.

Daniel O'Driscoll was convicted in the United States court at Cleveland, O., of violating the pension law.

In Mason county, S. C., robbers killed a family of six persons and burned their bodies with their home.

William Keens, jail at Anderson, Ind., tried to commit suicide by cutting his throat with a tip type.

George T. Ridder, a prominent business man of Middlebury, Mass., committed suicide by hanging himself.

William Stewart, a colored convict from Madison county, escaped from the Ohio penitentiary on the 23d inst.

John Hess, clerk of Upshur county, W. Va., has been arrested on a charge of filing fraudulent pension papers.

James Daily was killed by ears near Newark, O. He laid down on the track while under the influence of liquor and went to sleep.

Mattocks Kilgallen and John McDonald fought a duel with knives at Chicago, and the former was fatally stabbed. Both men loved the same girl.

During a terrific thunder storm at Trinity Lake, Conn., a house was struck by lightning and an entire family rendered unconscious, two being killed.

Mrs. Morrison, an aged lady, living near Anderson, Ind., was attacked by three savage dogs belonging to James Nelson, Saturday night, and was very seriously injured.

With the consummation of the proposed application of the rules to the railway mail service, there will be 27,000 offices in the departmental, customs and postal service, under civil service rules.

TUESDAY, APRIL 22,

The opening of Oklahoma Monday seems to have been made without any of the serious collisions that were justly feared. After the first clash there was little to be feared. There were some small disturbances and small difficulties will follow, but the worst danger is past.

The son of his-father idea seems to be much more popular in England than it is in America. The son of John Bright has been elected to parliament, defeating the Gladstone candidate, who against any other candidate would have won the victory. It is perfectly natural that it should be so. But the family take precedence in England. Here each tut stands on its own bottom.

The Denmark's 700 passengers were all saved and there is corresponding joy among the relatives of the ship's passengers, relatives whose suspense was indescribable until the good news came. The fact is, great steamship disasters are growing less frequent on the ocean as modern engineering progresses, and first-class steamship travel is attended by fewer dangers than railroad transportation.

The interference of the legislature with the railroads in Iowa has not resulted satisfactorily to the State or to those who use the railroads. Rates were reduced by law and the operators after entering a protest resolved upon a reduction in train service in keeping with the rates. Now the great State of Iowa finds its train service cut down one-half, mixed passenger and freight trains are substituted for passenger trains and the flying express has ceased to fly. Not content with what has already been done the commissioners will now try to compel the roads to maintain the old service at any rate which they may see fit to make.

G. M. E. Quarterly Meeting. The third quarterly meeting of the M. E. church will be held at Zion Church, Richland township, next Saturday evening, April 27th and 28th. Rev. H. H. ## THE WELSH IN AMERICA.

THEIR HAPPY NEST IN SCRANTON, PENNSYLVANIA.

The Wonderful Talent of the Welsh People for Chorus Singing and the Eisteddfodau Festivals—Gough Miners with Splendid Voices.

[Special Correspondence.]

Scranton, Pa., April 22.—The west half of Scranton is known to the Cymric race the world over as the "Welsh Athlons of America." This is its poetic name. In plain prose the place is called Hyde Park, the name it bore as a borough prior to its consolidation with Scranton when the latter was incorporated as a city in 1866. Notwithstanding all the changes wrought by progress, Hyde Park still holds its own, retains its name and rejoices in the characteristics that have given it a wide reputation as the center of Welsh culture in the United States. Here the people of Wales, who are among the best miners in the world, Lassettied in large numbers to develop the great smelting industry of the Lackawanna valley, and here may be heard the language of their fathers, as pure as it was spoken by their sturdy ancestors when they turned back the legions of Caesar from the sacred soil of Caerleon. Here, too, may be found some of the ancient customs of the Druids and the bands of old, the most notable of these being the Eisteddfodau, or literary and musical contests, which prizes are competed for with fervor of the heart, doctor after doctor, teacher after teacher, and mother after mother, the Compound, and am I free from the complaint? I feel very grateful to you." CHAS. H. LIVIS, Central Village, C.

Used by the United States Government, and Public Food Analysts, as the Strongest, Purest and most Healthful Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder does not contain Poisonous Oils or Chemicals. Vanilla, Lemon, Orange, Almond, Rose, etc. New York, Chicago, St. Louis.

RHEUMATISM AND NEURALGIA

These two diseases are the most common factors that lead to curvature of the spine. Patients suffering from them have been greatly relieved by taking Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder. It has permanently cured the worst cases of rheumatism and neuralgia so far as we know.

"I have been troubled with rheumatism for over ten years, and was very much disabled by the disease. I used to go about like a child, and was unable to walk without assistance. I took Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder, and now I can walk without any trouble, and do my work as a boy." LEONARD G. STONE, 3000, Sixty-third Street, New York.

LONG LIFE

There is nothing in the world more generally desired than long life, yet the majority of people put off caring for their health—not because they are really careless, but because we live our lives at such a pace we have not time to give the subject sufficient thought until we receive a reminder in the shape of a severe illness.

Then, too, we are continually bewildered by the various schemes of physicians, and the physician who is most popular is sinned down to, and the most and very popular physician is not necessarily the best. But, when you meet him, they will tell you that he is a doctor.

If people only knew what a valuable health-keeper life insurance would be, and preventer that life insurance is, they would constantly flock to the agent. And various names give, that the New Style Vinegar Butter is safe, and that it will be received a reminder in the shape of a severe illness.

But they do not know. They do not know, what it is, or what it does, but positively requires it. They constantly flock to the agent, and various names give, that the New Style Vinegar Butter is safe, and that it will be received a reminder in the shape of a severe illness.

They do not know, of course, unless they have the means to take the New Style. It stands out as the greatest system in every way, and those who buy it are buying the best.

Why don't they buy it, though? It is sent out by a responsible house, and is exactly as represented. It costs but a dollar for a very large bottle. Try it once and you will never care for anything in your life. Your druggist may not have it, but he will order it for you. Be sure it is safe. Please taste on carbon, and if the before you take it. Try it, and you will feel happier than if you had found a gold mine, for it really is a mine of health.

Free from alcohol and oil; composed of extracts, herbs and roots, with a fine, delicate flavor.

—A slight blaze in the roof of Walt Macken's new house, on Greenwood street, caused considerable excitement Monday afternoon. Both fire companies were called out, but the fire proved to be of but little consequence, there being no damage done with the exception of a small hole being burned in the roof.

—The fire alarm was again sounded this morning. This time the fire was in Sam Bell's house, on north West street, but was of but little effect, as the bucket brigade succeeded in subduing the flames before the arrival of the companies. The fire burned the paper off the eeling of one room, which was about all the damage done.

—We have neglected to mention it here to you, but spring is here. This is the way it affects an Old editor. The rolling thunder with his noisy, rambunctious, is with us once again, the deep bass note of the frogs heard in the evening's gloaming; the peach trees are decked with pink, and soon the gorgeous dandelions, with their golden buttons, will taste nature's stroke of green.
A man must have a great deal of presumption
then to pick dandelions.

—Considerable complaint has been made by the fire department concerning persons not connected with the department making themselves a nuisance about the engine house in times of fire. Several times have parties rushed into the engine room and committed acts which were greatly detrimental to the working of the department in quick order, and they are also in the habit of climbing onto the hose cart and hanging to the engine for a ride to the fire.
Such a nuisance should be put an end to, as it very bothersome to the men employed in such cases.

—Conductor Joe Dill, who had charge of the train, says that Mr. McNeally was brought aboard the train in Chicago, placed on a seat and a first class ticket to Marion and laid down beside him. The two men departed before the train started without a word concerning the sick passenger, giving no other directions for his care or particular as to his illness. This strange course reduced some suspicion on the part of train men but Mr. McNeally's condition did not seem fatal, so nothing was done but bring him with the train.

—The stranger said nothing concerning himself or the man who put him on the train, and was indeed too weak to stand or sit up, and had to be propped up with cushions.
He seemed very weak and breathless with much difficulty, but it was not until Marion was reached that death seemed imminent. He lingered, however, until between Kenton and Marion, and died near Epiphany. The death cast a gloom over the passengers of the train and there was much sorrow over so sad a fate.

—When Marion was reached the remains were taken to Schaeffer's undertakers establishment and prepared for burial. A letter was found in his pocket addressed to a daughter in Mansfield, and the fact of his death was telegraphed to her. In the meantime the body remains at Schaeffer's for identification and a coroner's inquest,
which was held this afternoon.
